Date April 12, 1968

MISS MARCELLA GRIMM, 2637 Old Hapeville Road, Apartment 38-B, Hapeville, Georgia, advised that she was a stewardess for Eastern Airlines and stationed at the Atlanta, Georgia, Airport. She stated that on April 4, 1968, she was one of two stewardesses on Eastern Airlines Flight 398 from Memphis, Tennessee, to Atlanta, Georgia. MISS GRIMM advised that Flight 398 departed Memphis, Tennessee, late, approximately 10 p.m., and arrived in Atlanta, Georgia, in the vicinity of midnight on April 4, 1968. MISS GRIMM noted that her assignment on Flight 398 kept her contained in the segment of the airplane reserved for first-class travelers and she, therefore, was not in a position to observe which individual was seated in the vicinity of 11-D or 10-D within the fuselage of the airplane. She did, however, advise that while greeting passengers at the front entrance of the airplane prior to its departure from Memphis she observed a group of young college age men boarding the airplane in a group. She stated that each of the men was dressed in an identical Navy blue blazer with gold buttons on the front and on the sleeve of the jacket. MISS GRIMM further advised that two other young men entered the airplane with the group and she described these as being of the "hippie-type" and noted that they were clad in blue jeans and had windbreakers and had long hair and generally appeared to be unkempt. She stated that she carried on no conversation with any of this group of people and had no reason to contact them while the flight was en route to Atlanta, Georgia.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date April 11, 1968

MISS MARILYN MATLOCK, 532 Cleveland Avenue, Building 60, Apartment A, Hapeville, Georgia, advised that she was a stewardess for the Eastern Airlines and that she had been assigned to work on Flight 398 which departed Memphis, Tennessee, on April 4, 1968, at approximately 10 o'clock p.m. and arrived in Atlanta, Georgia, on that same date at approximately midnight. MISS MATLOCK advised that her assignment while the plane was en route to Atlanta, Georgia, kept her in the area of the airplane where seat 11-D was located. MISS MATLOCK advised that that particular seat and those surrounding it were located on the right side of the airplane as one faced the cockpit. She noted that on the right side of the airplane there were three rows of seats and she advised that seat 11-D was four rows from the back of the fuselage and in the middle of her three aisles on the right side of the plane. MISS MATLOCK stated that the seats in rows 15, 14, 12, and 11 were occupied by a group of young college age men who boarded the airplane in Memphis, Tennessee. She advised that seat 11-C was vacant and that seat 11-D and 11-E were occupied by two men whom she described as being Beatnik or hippie in character. She stated that these two individuals appeared to be familiar with the larger group of young men who occupied the seats behind them but were dressed in a manner completely unlike the remainder of the group. MISS MATLOCK stated that all three of the seats in row 12 were occupied, that seats C and E in row 14 were occupied and that at the beginning of the flight both seats C and E in row 15 were occupied but she stated that one of the passengers, after the flight had commenced, moved from seat 15-C to seat 12-E. MISS MATLOCK stated that she was not familiar with the names of any of this group of passengers with the exception of one young individual who received a message to call the Eastern Airlines Information Desk upon his arrival in Atlanta. She stated that he was known to her only as "P. TITTERS". She stated that MR. TITTERS boarded Flight 398 in Memphis with the group of people described earlier and seated himself in seat 15-C. She advised that approximately five minutes after the flight had commenced he vacated seat 15-C and moved up two rows to take a seat with two of his friends in seat 12-E. MISS MATLOCK stated that when TITTERS received the message from Atlanta, Georgia, the man seated in 12-D looked at TITTERS and stated "They've already found out that you're the young clean-cut white male that did it." MISS MATLOCK further advised that the individual seated in seat 14-D had a small pad of lined notebook type paper which he appeared to be writing on. She advised that on one occasion she walked beside his seat and observed that when the individual writing noticed her presence he immediately covered the pad of paper with his hand so as to prevent her from seeing what was written. She advised that she did not see this individual pass any notes forward and noted that to the best of her knowledge none of the other young men in the group were writing on any kind of notepaper throughout the flight.

She further advised that with the exception of the two hippie-type individuals the young men in the group seated in the back of the plane all appeared to belong to the same organization, club, or fraternity in that their blue Navy blazers seemed to be identical in nature. She further stated that the blazers bore no insignias nor Greek letters which would have indicated to her that they were members of a mutual fraternity or social organization. She advised that there was very little conversation between the men while the plane was en route to Atlanta and stated that all of them exited Flight 398 when it arrived in Atlanta, Georgia.

The following descriptions of the members of the aforementioned group were provided by MISS MATLOCK and with the exception of P. TITTERS the descriptions are set forth by seat assignment on Flight 398:

Dear Sirs:

A man of a very strange character who has been in Atlanta
for about a year with no means of support and no traceable background. His name is Robert Day and he lives at 57 Tom Hardy Way.
I hope he has no connections
with the recent tragedy; however,
if there was a plot by the communists
I believe they would operate in just such a manner.
